

Accepted papers:

Elena Bjørgve, Elmira Zhamaletdinova, Svetlana Sokolova, Daria Kosheleva	My Russian Journey: New Teaching Practices for Elementary Russian
Marija Brala - Vukanović, Anita Memišević	The story of the Croatian POD(-). A contribution to the cognitive linguistic analysis of prepositional and prefixal semantics
David Danaher	Lítost in Milan Kundera's The Book of Laughter and Forgetting
Daria Demidova, Georgy Lonshakov	Gamification targeting high-frequency wordforms in Russian language learning
Stephen M. Dickey	Without Articles, Two Concepts are Better Than One for Unique Reference
Stephen M. Dickey, Kamila Saifeeva	Introducing "Russian Aspect in Conversation"
Anna Endresen, Valentina Zhukova	Construxercise!: how to implement a construction-based approach to language pedagogy
Masako Fidler, Václav Cvrček	Discourse profiling of East-West in Czech journalistic texts
Maja Glušac, Ana Mikić Čolić	Primjena kognitivnolingvističkih spoznaja u hrvatskoj normativistici
Chul Hyun, Hwang	Tošnit' vs. tošno, dušit' vs. dušno: a corpus analysis
Alina Israeli	Semantic taxonomy of the verb мочь.
Laura A. Janda, Anna Endresen, Valentina Zhukova	Reduplication in the ecosystem of Russian constructions
Gavrielle Lent	A Corpus Approach to Understanding Seasonal Metaphors in Yevgeny Onegin
Dominik Lukes	How to actually teach Czech aspect constructionally: Practical lessons from a theoretical enterprise
Pavel Machač, Mirjam Fried	Speech reductions and intelligibility in relation to utterance organization in Czech conversations
Anastasia Makarova, Tore Nessel, Laura A. Janda	Is security uniform across Slavic?
Svitlana Martinek	Опозиція СВІЙ–ЧУЖИЙ у свідомості носіїв української мови
Mihaela Matešić, Anita Memišević	How semantics of prefixes and root words affect syllabification
Tore Nessel, Martina Björklund, Svetlana Sokolova	Specprezentacija: A cognitive approach to the morphological construction spec-N in Russian
Marina Nikolić	Leksika sa semantičkom komponentom prostora i vremena u srpskom javnom diskursu tokom pandemije kovida
Anna Obukhova	Svalbard (Spitsbergen) in Russian media: identifying associations and narratives through Market Basket Analysis
Anita Peti-Stantić	Social construction of an abstract lexicon
Kamila Saifeeva	(Sure), Go Ahead, (But): Levels of Approval and Russian Imperatives
Viktor Slamnig, Mateusz-Milan Stanojević	Professional locative preposition drop in Croatian: playing in Zagreb vs. playing Zagreb
Filip Smolík	Word imageability facilitates lexical and morphological processing and acquisition
Svetlana Sokolova, Sandra Birzer, Aleksandra Ignatieva, Elizaveta Kibisova	A usage-based approach to morphological variation: The choice of suffix in Russian loan verbs
Aneta Stojić, Mihaela Matešić	Metaphorical potential of lexical collocations: the case of the noun "prilika"
Irene Testini, Petar Milin, Dagmar Divjak	On the learnability of aspect: a case study on Polish
Jelena Tušek, Jelena Parizoska	Gradability of figurative meanings of Croatian ingesting verbs
Elmira Zhamaletdinova	How to request permission in Slavic languages? A comparative corpus-based study of modal constructions used in speech acts of request
Valentina Zhukova	Empty negation? Two competing contrastive constructions in Russian